VIDEO LARYNGOSCOPY—THE NEW GOLD STANDARD | #ANES24

TopMedTalk brings you exclusive, cutting-edge conversation from Anesthesiology 2024, the American Society of Anesthesiologists (ASA) annual general meeting; the world's largest gathering of anesthesiologists. The conference brings us all together to discuss the latest advances in the field.

This piece presents a strong case for video laryngoscopy. It's the preferred method but is the evidence there and if so what is it? Why has it become "the new gold standard"?

Desiree Chappell and Mike Grocott speak with Kurt Ruetzler, staff anesthesiologist at Cleveland Clinic, associate Professor of Anesthesiology, Lerner College of Medicine at Case Western Reserve University.

ABOUT TOPMEDTALK

Making the world healthier, through the power of conversation

TopMedTalk (www.topmedtak.com) is the broadcasting arm of Evidence Based Perioperative Medicine (EBPOM). EBPOM has been producing meetings, courses, and congress in Perioperative Medicine since 1997.

TopMedTalk has been live and on-demand broadcasting since 2017.

TopMedTalk offers free open access medical education (FOAM) to a global audience. More than 25,000 regular listeners and over 2 Million downloads in >100 Countries.

EBPOM is a collaborative project between a number of UK and international academic institutions that exists to promote the examination, discussion and application of evidence-based medicine to perioperative care.

TopMedTalk and EBPOM aim to improve the outcome of patients undergoing surgery, through creating a forum for research development, practical acquisition of essential skills and dissemination of evidence based perioperative knowledge.

2020 was EBPOM's first fully on-line (virtual) conference year broadcast by TopMedTalk. Over 10,000 registrants logged on to our live events (London, July; Chicago, September; Dingle, October) and we held our first 'POCCAPALOOZA' during the EBPOM Live from London event (South Africa, London, Chicago, San Francisco, Sydney, Hong Kong)
